Hans-Georg van Liempd

Hans-Georg van Liempd has been the Managing Director at the Tilburg School of Social and Behavioral Sciences at Tilburg University, the Netherlands since November 2014.

From September 2010 until September 2014 he served as (vice-) President of the European Association for International Education (EAIE), for which he also was chair of the Editorial Board of the EAIE Handbook for Internationalisation. In his role as an expert on international education and strategy he is a frequent presenter at institutions and conferences around the world. Recently he gave training and workshops in Romania, Colombia, France, Italy, Spain, Belgium and the Netherlands. He also serves as senior EAIE Trainer on the topic of (Implementing an) Internationalisation Strategy.

In the past he held several positions at Tilburg University. In 2005, he set up the Central International Office at Tilburg University and served as its Director until mid-2010, when he became elected as Vice President of the EAIE. During his (vice-) Presidency for EAIE he worked as Senior Programme Manager at Tilburg on university wide programmes such as Internationalising the Campus and Corporate Social Responsibility. Lastly, he was interim Director Strategy & Policy from March until October 2014 at the university.

Furthermore, he is a member of several Advisory Boards in the area of culture, health and education in the Netherlands and abroad.

Elizabeth Colucci

Elizabeth Colucci is an adviser and policy expert for the European University Association (EUA), focusing primarily on higher education policy, internationalisation and higher education in development cooperation. Between 2008 and 2014 she was a programme manager in the Higher Education Policy Unit of EUA, overseeing EUA's external relations with non-European countries. Elizabeth has developed and managed a range of European Union-funded international projects for EUA, and also contributed to the Bologna Process working group ('BFUG') on the official strategy for the European Higher Education Area in a Global Setting. She has helped to develop policy positions and input regarding cooperation with a variety of regions, including Africa, Latin America, Asia and North America. She currently supports EUA's dialogue with Arab universities and manages projects involving higher education reform and harmonisation in Southeast Asia, the European Neighborhood countries, Latin America and Africa. In addition, Elizabeth presently consults for the University of Barcelona and the Observatory of Relations between Latin America and Europe (OBREAL). Amongst numerous international projects that she coordinates is the Harmonisation of Quality Assurance and Accreditation Initiative for Higher Education in Africa (HAQAA).

Elizabeth has also served as a senior officer at the Academic Cooperation Association (Brussels), and worked for the Fulbright Commission to Belgium and Luxembourg and for the Directorate for Education and Culture (EAC) of the European Commission. She holds a Master of Science in European politics and governance from the London School of Economics and completed her Bachelor degree in comparative international studies and French at Duke University (USA).
